THE PRIORITY PROJECT

We're proposing a new solution to help women experiencing domestic violence secure housing and avoid homelessness

What if you could register your investment property to provide a safe, secure rental home for women who have experienced domestic and family violence (DFV)?

We're calling this The Priority Project (TPP). It's a private rental property register for prioritising rental to women and children impacted by DFV.

DFV is the leading cause of homelessness for women and children in Australia.

We're raising funds for a 12-month pilot and seeking Expression of Interest from investment property owners be support the project.

What is The Priority Project?

The Priority Project will connect women experiencing DFV with rental housing

| Supply of rental homes from the private rental market | → | The Priority Project's private rentals property register

Partnership brokering and housing navigation | ← | Women in need of housing |

How will it work?

1 Women experiencing DFV who are in need of housing are referred to a Partnership Broker at The Priority Project by their social services / DFV case manager.

2 Investment property owners (YOU) list your rental property on the property register to provide housing to women experiencing DFV. If you express interest now, we will be in touch once we are ready to pilot. This is our current focus.

Express your interest to add your investment property to our TPP register using the link below:

3 The Partnership Broker matches women with appropriate properties on the property register. The owners of properties on this register have elected to prioritise rental to tenants who have experienced DFV. A woman's needs will be considered alongside different property options. To be eligible the woman must be referred through a DFV or housing service provider and have enough or close to enough income to afford weekly rental payments.

4 If there is a suitable property match, the woman independently signs a lease just like a normal tenant would and will be continually supported by her DFV or housing service provider.
